A large crowd attended the W. F. Richardson estate auction sale of personal property Saturday. A team of horses brought $425, one cow $81, one cow $44, and two small shoats sold for $25. A buggy wagon went for $45, a dump cart sold for $25, sleds $29.00 and another pair of sleds at $24. A lumber wagon brought $20 and other property brought prices in proportion. C. F. Smith was the auctioneer.

Giul Ciampi of Barre had one leg broken and his nose fractured yesterday while driving on the East Montpelier road near powerhouse No. 5 of the Consolidated Lighting Co. The horse overturned the wagon, throwing out Mr. Ciampi. The accident was witnessed by others and a physician was summoned, who advised that the injured man be taken to Heaton hospital. The breaks were set, but it will be some weeks before the man will be out of the hospital. The leg fracture is between the knee and ankle.

A gang of laborers under the supervision of Contractor Cortez Foley started this morning to rip up the concrete sidewalk which faces the stores of J. W. Vaughan and E. A. Drown in the Drown building. Two hatchways that have long offered the pedestrian an uncomfortable chance to stub his toe will be closed and the basement entrances transferred to the rear end of the block. The walk, to the limits of the Drown property, will be of cement and the contractor hopes to have the front completed by the latter part of the week. It was stated this morning that an effort would be made to induce the aldermanic street committee to extend the cement walk out to the curb. Whether this will be done could not be learned. A short time ago a considerable stretch of walk near the Reynolds property was relaid with cement, and pressure was brought to bear upon the committee to have the cement covering continued as far south as the Drown block.

Story of the Opera
The scene of the opera is set on Easter morning in a small Italian village. The characters are all well drawn and true to the hot-blooded southern type. Turiddu, the tenor, is a young villager, who previous to the opening of the opera has been a soldier. He is the son of old mother Lucia, the wine-shop keeper, and is the lover of Lola. Lola is betrothed to Turiddu, but wearying of his long absence in the army breaks her troth and marries Alfio, a leecher. Turiddu returns and finds his sweetheart wedded to another, so he calmly sets about winning the affections of the beautiful Santuzza. In this he succeeds, whereupon Lola decides to win him back again. On Easter morning Santuzza, desperate because Turiddu has wronged her and deserted her, comes to plead with him at his mother's wine-shop. Turiddu spurns her and in revenge she betrays Turiddu's intimacy with Lola. Enraged, Alfio challenges Turiddu to a duel and kills him.
